Hateful Blood Relations.
Hateful kindred are those sprung from the parent stem—malaria. They are chills and fever, bilious remittent fever, dumb ague and acute chills. These foes to bodily peace are all blood relations, as there is no doubt that these epidemic complaints are produced by contamination of the blood by the miasmata ex-existent in both air and water in malarious regions. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures the blood from the blood the virus which miasmata infects, but it does more than this, it neutralizes the atmospheric and aqueous poison and its germs before they have permanent foothold in the system, and thus actually protects the blood from the miasmata. Hood's Sarsaparilla is not only a remedy, but also a preventive, prompt in relieving, lasting in effect, perfectly efficient. Nervousness, dyspepsia and kidney trouble also succumb to it.

Fear's soap is the pure and best soap ever made.

DEATH OF GOV. BROSS.

An Illinois Pioneer Passes Away at Chicago After Five Days of Illness.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE AGAIN IN MOURNING.

A Compromise Effected on Temporary Organization of the Iowa House—News of the Northwest.

Chicago, Jan. 28.—Ex-Lieut-Gov. William Bross, one of the largest stockholders in the Chicago Tribune and president of that company, died at 10:30 o'clock Monday night after an illness of five days. He was 76 years old and had been a sufferer from diabetes during the last ten years, all of which time he had fought the disease with a firmness that characterized his life-long efforts.

William Bross, ex-Lieutenant-Governor of Illinois, was born near Port Jervis, N. Y., in 1813. When he was 9 years old his parents removed to Millford, Pa., and there he grew to manhood and received his academic education. He graduated from Williams College in 1838.

He came to Chicago May 12, 1848, and began his business career here by selling books. Then, in connection with the Rev. J. A. Wright, he published the "Chicago Tribune" in 1852. In 1853, William Bross and John L. Scripps founded the Democratic Press. Two years later, when the Republican party was organized, the "Deacon" warmly espoused its faith, and has been a Republican since that time.

During the war he was active in the Republican cause. He assisted in raising the Twenty-ninth regiment, colored troops, which was commanded by his brother, John A. Bross, who was killed at Petersburg, July 30, 1864. "Deacon" Bross' services for the Union will be long and gratefully remembered. It was he who discovered and thwarted the rebellion conspiracy to save and turn Chicago and release the prisoners at Camp Douglas. In 1864 his patriotic services were recognized by his election to the office of Lieutenant-Governor.

He was married in 1839 to the only daughter of Dr. John T. James of Goshen, N. Y. Only one of their eight children now survive. This is Mrs. Henry D. Lloyd, whose husband is a well-known newspaper writer.

There are several things which will perpetuate the fame and labors of "Deacon" William Bross. His signature as president of the Illinois State Senate appears on two immortal documents. These are the amendment to the constitution abolishing slavery, and the approval of Congress in 1865, and the repeal of the infamous black laws. His name is associated with that of Lincoln, who was his warm personal friend.

Mr. Bross has long been associated with Mr. Medill on the Chicago Tribune and was one of its chief editorial writers for many years.

THE IOWA DEADLOCK BROKEN.

An Agreement Reached With Regard to Temporary Organization.

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 28.—On the House being called to order the caucus had agreed and a report was presented as follows:

"Recognizing the desirability of early permanent organization of the House, the Democrats and Republicans have agreed to submit to their respective friends who claim to be members the following proposition:

"1. That it is mutually agreed on between the Democrats and Republicans that at no time from the acceptance of this proposition to the final adjournment of the House will either party prevent from voting, unseated or offer to consider any proposition to unseat any one whose name appears on the list prepared by the Secretary of State of Iowa and now in use in the roll-calls of this body on account of any objection to the apportionment of the Twenty-third General Assembly creating the district from which he was elected.

"2. That Mr. Henry S. Wilcox be elected temporary clerk; that Mr. L. D. Hotchkiss be elected temporary speaker; that a Republican be elected temporary speaker pro tem; that Mr. D. C. Kolb be elected assistant temporary clerk; that the doorkeeper and sergeant-at-arms be Democrats; that three assistants doorkeepers, each side one-half of the necessary pages, each side one paper-folder and assistant postmistress, said officers and employees to hold office during temporary organization.

"3. That said temporary clerk be instructed to receive certificates of election of persons claiming to be members of Twenty-third General Assembly and make up the roll of members by placing upon said roll the names of the members as listed by the Secretary of State and now in use in the roll-calls.

The report was adopted, and it was further agreed that the committee on contested elections shall be composed of five members selected from each party by their respective caucuses.

The session was as happy as a love-fest. The Democrats seconded the motion of the Republicans to adjourn. The session was adjourned until the organization is completed.

CHINESE LEADS TO SUICIDE.

A Thieving Express Agent Shoots Himself at Coldwater, Mich.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Jan. 28.—William W. Nivison, formerly agent of the United States Express company here, shot himself Monday afternoon at his home in Coldwater, Mich., and, though last report said he was living, he will probably die.

Nivison went from the express office one night a package containing $7,000. Dal P. Mikesell, cashier of the office, was accused of the theft, and the accusation drove him crazy. He is now hopelessly insane in an Ohio insane asylum. Nivison recently made confession of the whole affair when he was supposed to be dying. He recovered and was indicted. To-day he was arrested at his home. After he had been arrested he stepped into the closet under the pretense of getting his hat and shot himself in the breast.

A Bill Affecting $3,000,000 in Land.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Jan. 28.—A bill has been introduced in the House to repeal the act of the Territorial Legislature passed in 1873, under which the Oregon Improvement company acquired title to the tide lands claimed by the State. This bill affects property of the company valued at $3,000,000.

TAKE CARE OF YOUR EYES.

Dr. E. MINOR, the eminent oculist of Detroit, Mich., will visit every town in this county during the winter. Any one suffering with weak eyes, or eyes closed by inferior glasses, should not fail to see him. Orders left at the post office will be promptly attended to. No extra charge for examination or visiting patients at their homes.

A CENTURY of progress has not produced a remedy equal to Ely's Cream for the cure of hemorrhoids, piles, and hemorrhoids. It is not a liquid or a ointment, but is perfectly safe and easily applied to the nostrils. It gives immediate relief and cures the worst cases.

Don't say there is no help for hemorrhoids, hay fever and cold in head, since thousands testify that Ely's Cream has been entirely cured. It supersedes the dangerous use of liquids and snuffs. It is easily applied into the nostrils, and cures the worst cases.

THREE VICTIMS OF JEALOUSY.

An Arkansas Man Shoots His Rival and a Girl and Mortally Wounds Himself.

BATESVILLE, Ark., Jan. 24.—Jake Schreiber, aged about twenty-one years, shot Miss Emma Fry and George Meissner yesterday as they were talking on the balcony of the girl's home eight miles east of here. The girl was shot in the left breast and the wound is almost certainly fatal, but Meissner will recover. As Schreiber rode out of the yard Albert Fry, a young brother of the girl, seized a revolver, and fired three shots at him, the last of which took effect in the back of his head and knocked him down, but he arose and resumed his flight. Schreiber was found in an old house in the neighborhood almost dead. In addition to the shot he had received from Fry he had shot himself with the last cartridge in his revolver, but failed to inflict fatal wounds. He had then taken a heavy stone and tried repeatedly to crush his head and each blow had rendered him unconscious for a time. He was brought here and lodged in jail, where he lies in a very precarious condition. Schreiber and Meissner were rivals for the hand of Miss Fry.

WOMAN IN LABOR'S CAUSE.

A society formed on the federative plan has been organized in London. It is known as the "United Sisterhood of Labor" and its membership is confined solely to women. Working women who belong to it can on the payment of 2 shillings a month become entitled to a house allowance of 8 shillings a week for six months.

New York has still another Working Girls' club. This branch has secured its club-rooms in Grand street and furnished them with great taste. In connection with the organization a school is provided, with competent teachers. Typewriting, stenography, millinery, embroidery, dress-making, and cooking are taught. The initiation fee is 25 cents.

Under the energetic supervision of several wealthy English women the work of organizing the unskilled female labor of London is making some progress. Trades unionism among women has made relatively slow progress since the movement was set on foot by Mrs. Pater-son in 1874. Now, however, the outlook is brighter and the untiring energy of Mrs. Sheldon Amos, Lady Sandhurst, Miss Clementine Black and the bishop of Bedford seem about to be rewarded with success.

Another lady orator has come to light in England, where lady orators are not thick just now. This latest competitor for fame is Lady Trevelyan, a pronounced Liberal woman of great strength of character. She recently made a speech in Glasgow at a meeting of the Liberal association, and, according to the English newspapers, acquitted herself admirably. Lady Trevelyan sides with her husband in things political and sympathizes with the working classes.

The Society for Aiding Self-Supporting Women, which was founded in New York over four years ago, has opened a home for working girls at 441 West Twenty-third street. Miss Ward, who was the originator of the organization, has been indefatigable in her efforts to assist the toilers of her sex, and the new home is the outcome of two years' steady work. The aim of the society is not only to provide home-like accommodations for these deserving women wage-earners, but to enlarge its sphere of usefulness by opening a bureau for providing employment and by collecting a relief fund to be used in cases of illness or in need from lack of employment. The highest price paid for board at the home is $5 a week.

JOSH BILLINGS' PHILOSOPHY.

Man is a hilly eddicated animal.

Tongue-tied wimmin are very scarce and very valuable.

Ho who acquires wealth dishonestly is too corrupt to enjoy it.

It is a grate art few be superior to others without letting them know it.

Vain men should be treated as boys treat bladders—blow them up till they burst.

I have always noticed that he is the better fellow whose thoughts agree with our own.

All successful flirts have sharp eyes—one eye they keep on you and one on the other fellow.

There is not only phun but there is virtue in a hearty laugh; animals can't laugh and devils won't.

Don't never quarrel with a loafer. Skurrility is his trade; you never can make him ashamed, but he is sure to make you.

Vanity is called a discreditable passion, but the good things that men do can often be traced to their vanity than to their virtue.

It is never phroveny, young man, for it, and if you phroveny right nobody will remember it.

Excentricities, when they are natral, are sum indikashun of a superior mind; those which think different from others are apt to be different.

CURIOUS CONDENSATIONS.

The oldest inhabited town in the world is said to be Damascus.

During December money in circulation in the United States increased $10,016,299.

At McConnellsville, Ohio, a few days ago a colony of bees swarmed and alighted on a coal-house door.

Officials of the Eastern Indian schools say six have died after returning West since 1884 and sixty-six before that.

Great Falls, N. H., has a justice of the peace, J. B. Shapleigh, who has been in office continuously fifty-three years.

A bird of an unknown species flew into a Salem, Ohio, office the other day and was captured. It was about as large as a quail and had bright plumage.

Five varieties of the alternanthera, a plant native of the Cape of Good Hope, are used to border the walks and lawns in the Alcazar grounds at St. Augustine. The bright colors produce a pretty effect.

An aged lady of Elmwood, near Cincinnati, being taken ill while out driving, requested her driver to take her to the office of an undertaker whom she knew well. He did so and she died in a few minutes after he arrived.

Depletion of the Chesapeake oyster-beds is cutting short the supply for the packers and several of the largest firms in Baltimore have begun cultivating the bivalve in Southern waters and establishing packing houses in those localities.

Pensacola, Fla., customs officers found choice cognac and cordials aboard the Swedish bark Adolph and seized them for duties. The master said they were ship stores. When the Treasury Department heard he had tried to sell them it was concluded that they were not for sailors and sustained the collector.

More than 10,000 peated Roman coins dated between 200 A. D. and 300 A. D. have been found beneath the tile in St. Pabu, Elsinore. The question is, were these the result of a queer private enterprise or did Valerian Dacrotian and other Romans have been digging for gold in the ruins of the true coin of the realm?

A New York dry goods merchant said that frequently some of the subordinate employees receive larger remuneration than the men in whose hands rests the main responsibility for running a business. The men who usually make the most money in the very large firms are not the superintendents and his chief assistants, but the buyers of the departments.

A novel and amusing fight was recently witnessed at White Plains, N. Y., between two men. That large body of water was frozen over, with the exception of about an acre in the center. The open space was so completely packed with ducks and geese that it was not possible to get across. The men were equally crowded around and were holding a cackling indignation meeting because the more fortunate ones would not come out and give them a chance for a swim.

The biggest edible oysters in the world are found at Port Lincoln in South Australia. They are as large as a dinner-plate, and the same shape. They are sometimes more than a foot across the shell, and the oyster fish shell so well he does not leave much margin. It is a new sensation, when a friend asks you to lunch at Adelaide, to have an oyster set before you fried in butter or eggs and bread crumbs. But it is a very pleasant sensation, for the flavor and delicacy of the Port Lincoln mussels are indeed proverbial in that land of luxuries.

The last pearl-fishing season in Ceylon could not have been more successful than it was. The season only lasts twenty-two days, and during that period 11,000,000 oysters were brought to the surface by fish divers. They are paid by one-fourth of the number. This season the whole produce was sold at the rate of 24 shillings per 1,000 oysters. The government received $20,000 as their share and the divers $5,400. The largest pearls are worth in Ceylon from $40 to $60, and in Europe they fetch three times the price or more.

A dispatch from Portland, Me., tells of a man who was shot while fishing. The winter and so far this winter the mercury has not touched zero. No snow is on the ground, while usually at this time of the year the streets of the cities and the roads of the country are packed with drifts. Animals and insects that usually come from their winter quarters in April and May are now abroad and dandelions are blooming in the fields. Similar reports come in from all along the coast. Most concentrated in lumber and ice industries, which bring millions of dollars to the State every year, are anxious.

At Ansonia, Conn., some old women got together and cured a child of membranous croup after the doctors had given it up. The patient was thoroughly wrapped up in flannels and his head and throat were rubbed with goose grease. A dose of the stuff, mixed with vinegar, was with difficulty forced down the child's throat. In a short time he vomited up a large portion of the stuff and broke up the clogging matter in the throat. Being placed in bed, he soon went to sleep, and the next day he was playing about the house and appeared to be far from dying.

Salem, Mass., formerly had a large trade with Africa, and the trade was gradually transferred to Boston. It is just as large as ever it was, but because the country has grown so enormously it has become small in comparison with other lines of trade. One of our modern ships will take a cargo to Africa as large as all the ships of Salem in the old days could carry in a year. There are over a dozen vessels engaged in African trade with Boston. There is close competition with the English for this trade. Ships take out miscellaneous goods. Rum is the chief thing. Then bring calicoes, beads, music-boxes, and so on. The return cargo is mostly palm oil, gold dust, furs, and ivory.

There are in France 877 associations of employers, 891 of workmen, and 697 of farmers. The workmen's associations, which were formerly political organizations, have become for the most part purely mutual benefit societies of late years. The agricultural associations do not agitate politically like our granges. They are to a large extent co-operative and technical. The farmers' association near Fontainebleau, for instance, owns a slaughter house at which every member has his cattle killed at very low prices. This and other similar co-operative devices of the French farmers' associations show that the French peasant is generally supposed to be helpless as he is generally supposed to be.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and cannot be beat in competition with the multitude of low test short weight alum or phosphate powders. Sold only in cans. Royal Baking Powder Co., 110 Wall Street, N. Y.

Our monthly journal devoted to home interests. It is not an advertising dodge of our other enterprises in any possible way. In fact it is our present intention never to encroach on its 32 columns with our own "ads" and all other "ads" admitted to it, over 12 columns, thus leaving for every issue at least 20 columns of the best and most interesting reading matter it is in our power to produce. While this is true as regards the advertising space in this journal we shall say a good many interesting and true things about RIVERVIEW PARK that we have not space to say in the city dailies. In short, while our main object in publishing "The Home," is not to advertise our real estate, we will use its columns to a limited extent to so advertise. What is our main object in the publishing of this journal? Ask you; this is a laudable and proper curiosity, and we would reply. We are in Janesville permanently. We are many things, that our very large experience in nearly every important city between the Atlantic and Pacific has brought to our notice that we think may benefit this city—our future home; and we are led to desire to speak of these things, and we are going to do it to the best of our ability. We can do this as cheap in a journal of our own as we could through the daily papers, and feel at liberty to "let ourselves loose" in our own paper. This is one of our ideas. Our PRINCIPAL motive is, we are in LOVE with home, our HOME and all true homes. We would in these, our last years, find easy and do something to build up, encourage and promote lovely homes; whatever may be our doing this is what we desire to do. We are egotistical enough to think we can say some good words through this medium of ours. We propose to try to do it.

If you see a copy of "The Home" and think you will like to see it every month, we shall be glad to have your address and TWENTY-FIVE CENTS for a year's subscription. The January number is now out and can be obtained at our office or from our canvasser.

Yours very truly,
Geo. L. & Sarah H. Carrington.
